Big Crossett Box May Decide Fate of Election Fight

Enough Votes at Stake to Overturn Entire 7th District Result

NEVADA CO. PROBE

Sheriff Pittman of Prescott to Be on Stand at Hamburg Tuesday

HAMBURG, Ark.—The fate of the important Crossett box, probably will be decided Tuesday in the suit of Walter Pittman, Jr., against the nomination of William B. Parks for congressman of the Seventh district in the Democratic run-off primary August 28.

Judge Patrick Henry indicated Monday when hearing of the lengthy suit was resumed in circuit court here, that he will rule on the motion of Kitchens' attorneys to throw out the Crossett box on the ground of fraud.

Only two witnesses were heard Monday. Proceedings were checked because a Parks witness, Sheriff Arlice E. Pittman of Nevada county, declined for technical reasons to serve a subpoena on himself. The summons was given to the coroner to serve, and the sheriff will be in court Tuesday.

May Depend on Ruling. It is quite possible that the outcome of the contest may hinge on the court's ruling on the Crossett box, since the vote there was 479 for Parks and 85 for Kitchens, according to official returns, while the margin in favor of Parks in the entire district was only about 300 votes. If the court should uphold the contestant's claim of skulduggery in connection with the official returns from Crossett and throw out the box entirely, Parks would lose 479 votes while Kitchens would lose only 85.

That would be sufficient to swing the count in favor of Kitchens, and Parks' successful defense of his nomination would depend largely upon the examination of approximately 1,000 individual votes in the various counties of the district on the grounds of failure to assess properly, to pay poll taxes and the like.

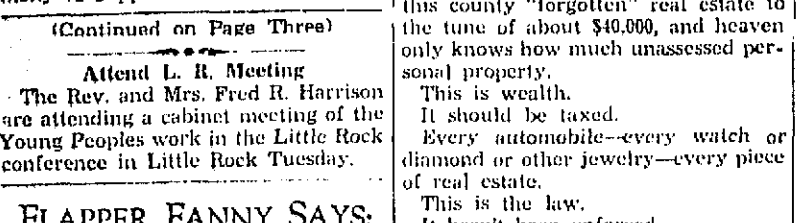

A Court Mystery. What actually happened at Crossett in the run-off still is a court mystery. Kitchens, early in the trial, put 200 witnesses on the stand to testify that they voted for him, as compared with an official vote of only 85 credited to him. Then the Crossett box was brought into the court room and the ballots counted. There were 479 for Parks, 85 for Kitchens and one blank. Kitchens is relying chiefly upon evidence of fraud in Crossett and Parkdale precincts. He also has introduced evidence to show there was an error of 98 votes in favor of Parks in tabulating the entire Ashley county vote. The retabulation of official returns from the various precincts was made on an adding machine in the courtroom several weeks ago.

Resumes Challenge. Parks, when the hearing was resumed Monday, continued with testimony to support his challenge of in-

Legion Will Push Bonus Payment in Spite of President

Commander Belgrano Seizes Upon F. D's Letter as Pay Argument

WOULD MEET DEBT

Roosevelt Argued First Payment Went Only to Pay Past Debts

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., American Legion commander, declared Tuesday his organization would press for immediate payment of soldiers bonus despite opposition of President Roosevelt.

His statement contended that Roosevelt's anti-payment letter contained "one of the strongest arguments in favor of immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates I have yet read."

His reference was to the president's reminder that when the veterans first borrowed 50 per cent of the face value of the certificates it was used largely to discharge their duties.

He said: "For some time a great many of my friends have been urging me to be a candidate for mayor. I take this opportunity to announce to them and to those whom I have not yet had an opportunity to see, that I have decided to enter the race and will be a candidate for mayor at the city Democratic primary election to be held February 12."

"I am 25 years of age, and have lived here all my life. I want to be mayor and, if elected, I will give the city a sound, business-like, aggressive and wide-awake administration that will be responsive to the needs of the city, and to the will of its citizens. I solicit the vote and active support of every citizen who favors such an administration."

"I promise the best that is in me, and that I will at all times do what I think is right and for the best interest of the city."

Robinson to Ask Confidence Vote

Democrats Expected to Re-Elect Him Senate Majority Leader

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senator Robinson of Arkansas said Monday he would put his position as senate Democratic leader to a test at a conference of party members Wednesday. Under the rules this is not required, since the senate is a continuing body.

Robinson made the announcement after a meeting of the old Democratic steering and policy committee. He said he was taking this step "that all Democratic senators, particularly the new members, may have an opportunity of expressing their choice."

There has been no indication of any opposition to Robinson, and his reelection is regarded by his colleagues as assured.

7 Eclipses Will Occur During 1935

It Will Be Greatest Astronomical Display in 130 Years

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—The sun in 1935 will present its greatest show of eclipses witnessed on the earth in 130 years.

Prof. Alfred H. Joy, secretary of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory, said Sunday that the sun and moon together will offer seven eclipses, the largest number possible in any one year. The moon will pass between the sun and the earth five times and the moon will be in the earth's shadow twice.

Not since 1905 have the sun's rays been partly blotted from the earth so many times. It will be the second series of five solar eclipses in one year since 1255 and there will not be another such number until 2185. And here is the rub for the 1935 show, only two eclipses will be visible in the United States.

Professor Joy said that a partial eclipse of the sun will be visible over the United States next February 3. The sun will rise eclipsed for the Pacific coast region. A total eclipse of the sun will be visible over the entire United States July 16.

The last total eclipse of the sun visible in the United States was August 31, 1932, and there will not be another seen in this country until 1945.

Mrs. Nash Is Put on Stand Against 6 in K. C. Depot Killing

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Nash, widow of the convict who was slain with four officers as gunmen sought to deliver him from his captors, took the stand as a witness Tuesday against six others charged with plotting to free Nash.

Mrs. Nash was questioned concerning telephone calls through which the government seeks to link the defendants with the fatal outburst of machine-gun fire in Kansas City Union Station.

Albert Graves Is Mayor Candidate

Young Hope Attorney Enters Primary Campaign for February 12

Albert Graves, young Hope attorney, formally announced as a candidate for mayor in the city primary election February 12, in The Star's political announcement column today.

Mr. Graves was graduated from Hope High School in 1926, from Hendrix college in 1930, and completed law school in June, 1933, being admitted to the bar in September of that year.

He said: "For some time a great many of my friends have been urging me to be a candidate for mayor. I take this opportunity to announce to them and to those whom I have not yet had an opportunity to see, that I have decided to enter the race and will be a candidate for mayor at the city Democratic primary election to be held February 12."

Relief and Security Programs for Huge Total Face Congress

Roosevelt, Hopkins Are Both Opposed to Straight Dole

Dutcher's Second Article Takes Up More Legislative Problems

INSURANCE FOR JOB

Government Considering Special Tax Against All Payrolls

This is the second of four stories in which Rodney Dutcher, NEA Washington correspondent, tells what may be expected from Congress at its coming session.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON.—Congress, with the advice of the president, must provide for 23,000,000 persons who are expected to be on relief rolls before the winter is over.

It will also make the first stab at a social security system similar in part to those long existent in the nations of Europe.

These two vast programs should not be confused with each other. Unemployment insurance is not unemployment relief, as it doesn't apply to those now unemployed. Old age pension legislation to be enacted, however, may tend to reduce the unemployment relief burden.

Federal, state, and local relief are now costing around $175,000,000 a month. More than $325,000,000 was spent for relief—including charity—since May, 1933, and almost the entire load is now being carried by the Treasury.

Relief is by far the biggest factor in direct New Deal expenses, in deficits and unbalanced budgets. Although unemployment has been reduced, the relief army has grown as the last resources of the unemployed have been exhausted. Existing relief standards are inadequate to prevent suffering.

Work Relief Is Aim. Congress will be asked to finance a program which will take as many people as possible off cash relief and put them at productive or other socially valuable work.

Months ago, Roosevelt came to agree with FERA Administrator Harry Hopkins that the cash dole was bad for the unemployed and bad for the country. "Work relief" has been the subject of numerous New Deal conferences and is the administration's latest answer to the problem of the 10,000,000 unemployed.

Big Business, assembled at White Sulphur Springs, has demanded the cash dole and as little of that as possible. The dole is a bit cheaper than work relief.

The administration will have no trouble persuading Congress to go the limit of any program for relief that it presents. Its difficulties will come when liberal groups in Congress insist on going farther in expenditures, especially with regard to a public works program.

Industry to Get Chance. Although the National Association of Manufacturers and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce ask further study of unemployment before anything is done about the Roosevelt social security program will also encounter a demand for more expensive measures than the administration is now willing to espouse.

It is fairly certain that, regardless of what Congress does, the bulk of relief families will have to go through the winter on cash relief. Other plans look forward to the future and it appears that industry will be given opportunity to reduce unemployment between now and spring before government actually puts men to work on any large new unemployment projects.

Congress will listen attentively to Hopkins when he is called before committees to give his recommendations.

A 1935 budget of $2,500,000,000 would enable Hopkins to place on work relief every head of a family and single person now on the rolls. It would cover the various existing work relief

Japan Going Way of Late Germany

Dr. Butler Pleads With Japanese to Overthrow Their Militarists

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in a New Year's day message, appeals to the Japanese people to cast off their "militaristic domination."

The Columbia University president, whose appeal was sent to Tokyo by the Rengo News Agency, said he counted himself a friend of Japan and termed "unfair" the laws restricting Japanese immigration to the United States.

Describing his message as one of frankness, Dr. Butler said the government of Japan "is at the present moment putting in gravest danger all the great and honorable reputation which her people have so finely won."

"Just as Germany has destroyed in three short years the vast influence which the progress of 250 years had brought to her, so now Japan, by permitting the domination of her public policies by that militaristic party which is to be found actively at work in almost every land, is risking her international reputation."

Recalling that Japan "has joined in formally and solemnly renouncing this as an instrument of national policy," he said:

"What then does her government mean by so constantly and so openly preparing for war by huge appropriations and by insisting on every occasion on increasing its naval armament?"

"The short and quick way for Japan to secure equality in naval armament is to secure equality in naval armament."

P. T. Staggs Named Ass't. Prosecutor

Named Hempstead County Deputy by Prosecutor Ned Stewart

P. T. Staggs of Hope, has been appointed deputy prosecuting attorney for Hempstead county, it was announced Monday by New Stewart, newly elected prosecuting attorney of Eighth Judicial District.

Other appointments were announced as: J. H. Lookadoo of Arkadelphia, Clark county.

Willis B. Smith of Texarkana, Miller county.

Donald Kelly of Stamps, LaFayette county.

The appointment of a deputy prosecutor for Nevada county will be announced within a few days, Mr. Stewart said.

Kingfish Moves to Unseat Chief

Alexandria Police Head Reported Ready to Defy State Authority

BATON ROUGE, La.—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long's state administration Monday put in motion the machinery given him by a subservient legislature to take over the city government of Alexandria, La., where the senator was once "egged" by an unfriendly crowd at a political speaking.

The administration's first move was directed against Long's personal enemy, Chief of Police Clint C. O'Malley of Alexandria, whom the senator charges with lax law enforcement.

The newly created Civil Service Commission Monday "took under advisement" charges of incompetence against the police chief after a short hearing at the capitol presided over by Gov. O. K. Allen.

The commission meeting was barred to the press, and O'Malley was not present to offer any defense. It was not announced when a decision would be reached.

O'Malley had been cited to appear before the commission to submit evidence "as to his competency to fill the position of chief of police in and for the city of Alexandria."

Representative L. M. Wimberly of Bienville parish, secretary of the commission, read a telegram from the police chief before the meeting opened in which the officer said it would be impossible for him to appear today because of illness in his family, but asserting that he would be glad to appear at a later date.

This message, however, did not conform to the report that Lieut. Gov. John B. Fournet gave the commission, said he had been informed by two members of the legislature from Rapides parish, O'Malley's parish, that the chief of police told them "that he wasn't going to appear and that they couldn't put him out of office."

Approximately 20 state highway police were in the city.

No Fire-Fighting Equipment, and Aged Men Burn to Death

UNABLE TO RESCUE

Authorities Paralyzed as Fire Destroys Cherokee County Home

GAFFNEY, S. C.—(AP)—Five aged men were burned to death and 15 injured early Tuesday when a fire destroyed the main building of the Cherokee county home as the temperature stood at freezing.

An immediate investigation of the flames, believed to have started on the roof, was opened by authorities.

No fire-fighting apparatus was available to battle the raging flames.

There was no water, said L. F. Allison, prison camp foreman, and nothing left to do but watch the fire flick through the structure.

The bodies of the five dead were recovered later in the morning. The wife of the home superintendent discovered the fire about 3:30 p.m.

4 Die in Texas. EL PASO, Texas.—(AP)—Four persons burned to death here Tuesday when fire destroyed a frame building used as a home and garage.

An overheated stove and a gasoline explosion were said by firemen to have caused the tragedy.

Estranislado Macias, his wife and their two children were the victims.

Kills Stepfather to Save Mother

That Is Story Told by 15-Year-Old Baltimorean to Police

BALTIMORE, Md.—(AP)—Elmer Hyer, 15, high school athlete, Tuesday fatally wounded his stepfather, Bernard Wietheger, in what he said was a defense of his mother against her husband's abuses.

He told officers he was unable to say how many shots he fired at Wietheger during an argument in his mother's bedroom.

The youth said his stepfather had been abusing him and his mother for some time.

Ask More Money for U. S. Defense

Army and Navy Claims to Be Laid Before New Congress

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Close upon Japan's denunciation of the Washington naval limitation treaty came word Monday that President Roosevelt will ask congress to increase the army's appropriation for the coming fiscal year by $445,000,000 and allot "at least" $100,000,000 to continue building the navy up to treaty strength.

A high naval official reported, however, that the department had asked only for funds to lay down 24 vessels to be the first of the 78 authorized, but no appropriated for, by the Vinton navy law. Cost estimates were guarded, but one official who would not be quoted predicted the 24 would involve an outlay of $135,000,000.

Funds to add 6,500 enlisted men to the navy and increase the enrollment at the Naval Academy by one-third also were disclosed to have been included in the department budget.

In high army circles word was passed today that the $445,000,000 increase was far below Secretary Darn's estimates and that a projected increase of army strength to 165,000 would be impossible. Its present enlistment is 118,000.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Beauty Takes Holiday, Too, If Routine Is Neglected

January is the month to recondition complexions that have been sadly neglected during the holidays. It's a fine time to take advantage of the extra hours everyone has at this time of year and to put a good deal of thought and energy into getting your skin, figure and general health back to the state they were in before you started a hectic rush of Christmas shopping, parties and gaiety.

First of all, make a resolution to average eight hours sleep a night for the entire month. This, more than anything else you can do, will help to get rid of lines, circles and puffs under the eyes, wrinkles across the forehead and a bad case of post-holiday nerves.

Figure out a sensible, non-fattening diet and stick to it. You've undoubtedly eaten too many rich lesserts, candies and heavy, hearty main dishes all during December and the chances are you've gained a few pounds. Even if you haven't, your digestive system needs a rest for a few weeks.

In addition, and also for your health as well as your figure, do daily exercises. Drink eight glasses of water a day, too.

If you have run out of creams that soften and lotions that clarify your skin, use some of your Christmas cash to invest in a new supply. We're going to have lots more cold weather, you know, and no one should be without a rich face cream and a hand lotion to counteract the drying effects of winter winds.

NEXT: Keeping your shoulders lovely.

Plane Is Reached by Rescue Party

Three of Crew Start Home While Fourth Guards Wrecked Ship

ALBANY, N. Y. — (AP) — Searchers have reached the four marooned fliers in the Adirondack mountains, Lieut. C. C. Jakway of the Massachusetts National Guard reported Monday after a trip over the spot.

It was not known which of the several searching parties had accomplished the terrific task, in three-foot snow, of reaching the plane.

Lieutenant Jakway dropped food to the wrecked ship.

Three of the four men are en route to civilization, while the fourth stands guard over the wrecked ship.

"I have definitely seen ship," said a message from Pilot Ray Jones of the American Airline. "It is about a mile north of the vertical point of an 'L' shaped lake, which is about five miles southwest of Hoffmeister, 15 miles north of Little Falls."

When the airliner was forced down in a blinding snowstorm it carried no provisions, and presumably its three pilots and one passenger have had nothing to eat.

The occupants were Ernest and Dale Dryer, brothers, of Cleveland, Ohio; J. H. Brown of Boston and R. W. Hambrook of Washington, Hambrook was the passenger.

Mystery of Life Traced to Genes

Twin Nature of Life Is Carried Down to the Very Smallest Cells

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — (AP) — The main cause of evolution, possibly even the evolution of the human race, itself, has been traced by a scientist to duplicate genes, "spare parts" among the tiny units of living matter that control heredity in every living thing.

Evidence pointing in this direction, showing that these "duplicate" genes or twin units of heredity are the real spring of evolution, the original source of all new species of animals and plants, was presented to the American Association for the Advancement of Science Sunday by Dr. M. Demerec of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

"Genes" are tiny units of living matter that exist in every cell of the human body and all other living things, and transmit hereditary characteristics from generation to generation.

Genes passed on to you from your parents determine whether you will be a blonde or brunet, tall or short, stocky or slender. Genes are so small that Dr. Demerec thinks a molecule, or small bundle of atoms.

New species originate from twin genes because only one of the twins is needed to help carry on the life of the cell in which it lives. The other twin is free to carve out a separate career often turning out to be something quite different from the other twin.

Lovable

BEGIN HERE TODAY

ANN HOLISTER breaks her engagement to TONY MICKLE the same day that PETER KENDALL tells VALERIA BENNETT, his fiancée, that everything is over between them. Ann thinks she still loves Tony and Peter believes he still cares for Valeria, but when chance brings the two together and Peter asks Ann to marry him she agrees.

They go to Florida and are happy there. Then Peter is recalled home. His family sends Ann and Valeria to his mother, who is in the hospital. She succeeds finally and Ann goes away, leaving no trace of her whereabouts.

Peter, desperately in love with Ann, goes on a journey to find her. His efforts to locate her are fruitless.

She has found work as a governess in the home of MRS. TRACY, an artist, ALAN VINCENT, Mrs. Tracy's brother, is attentive to Ann.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXV
"THERE is always more than one way to kill a cat," Valeria told herself on the night after Peter left her so abruptly. Parties were evidently not the way to bring him around. It had been a mistake to take him to Dirk's.

But there were ways! Every man has a weak spot in his armor. What was Peter's? Valeria must find out soon.

She invited Millicent over that afternoon for bridge. "The others are coming about 2:30," she said. "I wish you'd come early so we can have a good talk. It's been ages since I have seen you."

The half hour failed to reveal anything useful. But in the course of the afternoon, Valeria learned a piece of news. It was Leslie Wiloughby who said, "I hear Peter may sell that darling place he bought from Ronnie Brent."

"I don't know anything about it," Millicent answered.

Valeria looked up. "So Peter bought the Brent place?"

"You should know."

"I didn't. Peter has never mentioned it to me."

"If I had been Peter I would have let a little queer about buying the place. Ronnie was so much in love with Paula, and then to have her sue him for a divorce before the house was completed— Sue broke off, a little confused as Millicent's eyes met hers calmly.

Leslie, noting Sue's hesitation, said boldly, "I've heard Peter's wife is away. For long?"

"You'll have to ask Peter," Millicent answered shortly. "I believe it is your play, Sue."

MILlicent was first to leave. When the door had closed behind her, Leslie said, "The Kendall! Aren't they funny? So passionately loyal, if you know what I mean. Daring people to discuss their affairs. As if they could stop tongues wagging when Peter goes out and marries some girl he scarcely knew and Carol elopes with the chauffeur."

"Well, of course, he wasn't a real chauffeur but a terribly good-looking college boy," Sue said.

"It would have been the same to Carol. That girl gets what she wants and doesn't care what anyone thinks."

"When you are as rich as Carol you can get by with anything," Sue said.

"Everybody knows Peter's new wife has pulled out." This from Leslie. "Although nobody—except you, perhaps, Valeria—knows why."

Knowledge of Muscles Required in Massage

Massage will help restore life to tissues that have been bruised, sprained, or fractured. But that isn't mere rubbing. Rubbing may do a good deal of harm, as well as good.

A qualified masseur must have a knowledge of the parts concerned and of the way in which they work, and he must also know the difference between normal tissues and damaged ones.

One of the chief values of massage is to exercise parts of the body that cannot be exercised normally after an injury. If the tissues are kept absolutely quiet, they are injured by lack of use.

Gentle massage of the abdomen occasionally aids movement in the large bowel. When massage is applied to muscles, it stimulates them and aids removal of the products of muscle action. When a muscle acts, it uses up oxygen and develops lactic acid.

Experts in massage recognize several different types of motion, which are used for specific purposes. First there is a stroking movement, with the palm of the hand applied firmly and evenly away from the extremities and toward the heart. Purpose of this movement is to aid in draining the veins in the skin and thereby to improve the circulation of the blood.

A light and even stroking of the skin away from the heart and toward the extremities is believed by some massagers to help relax muscle spasms.

When there are thickenings of the tissue under the skin and when the muscles are stiff and sore, another movement is applied to loosen up the thickenings and the stiffness of the muscles. This is called friction.

It involves a rather circulatory movement which must be applied very carefully not to cause pain or aggravate the condition it is planned to benefit.

In the case of athletes whose muscles are hardened and stiff after several exercises, kneading movements are used. Here the fingers are chiefly employed, the tissues being grasped and between the fingers and the thumb as these are moved up and down. You must be careful to avoid hurting by pressing too hard.

Sometimes the whole hand is used in grasping and sometimes the two hands are used to wring the muscles or to shake them. These are the most useful movements in aiding recuperation of athletes.

Another type of movement is tapping with the palms of the hands, the sides of the hands, or the closed fists. The chief purpose of such movements is vibration.

Nowadays various forms of electrical vibrators provide this kind of massage even better than they can be provided by use of the hands. However, you must understand what you are doing with an electrical vibrator, because this also will produce harm if used to excess or in the wrong way.

A BOOK A DAY

By BRUCE CATTON

When Yankee Ships Roamed Every Sea — "South Street" Is History of the Great Days of Sail

To study the history of the United States by tracing the developments of its merchant marine is to get a one-sided picture, perhaps—but it also provides some extremely interesting sidelights on the country's growth and on the influences which shaped it.

A version of such a history is offered in "South Street; a Maritime History of New York," by Richard McKay.

This book reviews the rise, the heyday—and, unfortunately, the fall—of that great commercial fleet which put America's flag on every sea, turned our eastern seaboard into one of the greatest trading centers the world ever saw, and furnished a rich mine of anecdote, legend, and romantic fact which antiquarians are still working.

Our foreign trade veined with great rapidity after the Revolution. Shortly after the declaration of peace, a little brig named the Betsy—a good, early-American name for a ship, if there ever was one—inaugurated commercial sailings to Europe under the new American flag.

By the end of the century, the merchant marine was thriving, and for the next 50 years it made Yankee ships and shippers famous in every part of the globe.

The decline came when the country's attention turned inland, and the ravages of the Civil War completed the wreckage. But, while they lasted, those great days were colorful and filled with incident, and Mr. McKay has written a detailed and sympathetic account of them in this book.

Published by Putnam, it sells for $5.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children Seldom Are Really Cruel to Their Parents

A letter from a mother who asks if it is not true that as children grow up they often hurt you suggests my theme for today.

This idea has been wafted my way on various breezes this fall. Perhaps Ruth Suckow's book, "The Folks," brought it. It brought to the attention of the middle-aged the fact that their well-laid plans and woven dreams for their children oft go awry. Perhaps it bared certain secret regrets of parents here and there who thought that they alone were chosen to do a little private suffering. Like every other class of people with dark chambers in their hearts they find comfort in discovering theirs to be a common trouble and still more balm in comparing notes.

As my children are not only growing but "grown" now, perhaps what I have to say will bear the stamp of truth. My experience, however, may differ somewhat from that of the majority, not because they are different but because I am different. Having made a study of children and parents for so many years it would be strange if I had not learned many lessons about human relationships. And forewarned is forearmed. I knew that the success of middle-age did not depend so much on them as on myself.

4 Factors Involved in Parenthood
This I think, is the secret of calm content and rich harvest in our families as we grow older. A secret built around the same philosophy of acceptance that includes some of these things:

First, we cannot fit any child into a groove.

Second, we can not expect our opinions to be theirs when we send them out into the world to be educated and learn other people's opinions.

Third, we must not confuse independence with cruelty or indifference.

Fourth, we must not eat our hearts out because we have been unable to give them what we so often miscall "opportunities."

Concerning the pattern. One might as well plant a seed and then tell each of its resulting branches exactly which direction to grow as to expect the child to conform in every respect after he or she is old enough to generate independent thought and action.

As to outside influence how can we expect our children to be untouched by the forces of school and society when much if not most of their lives are spent out of the home?

And neither should we forget that young people seething with life and their own hopes will not eternally walk on eggs and spare our feelings if we have grown brittle shells or ubiquitous nerves that are always getting under foot.

Why should we snifle and weep? They love us. They are not cruel. The trouble here is still comparable to the ruthless growing force of the plant. It will grow, and even split through a hard rock to do so. But you cannot prevent its expanding.

And last, no parents needs to feel a futile guilt because he cannot make his boy a football captain or leave him a fortune.

These young people will surprise you. Give them ten or twenty years and you will find they have succeeded and developed beyond your imagination. Look across to them instead of down and be happy.

Let Us Remember

The Old Year passes, and the New Year comes. With silver note of trumpet and with throbbing drums.

Dear Lord, we pray, Let us remember only joyous things This New Year's Day.

A bed of valley lilies braving spring's sweet chill;

A row of tapering pines atop a distant hill;

The summer's fruitful flowering and the harvest moon;

October's flaming torch: December's priceless boon,

The Christ Child! and his birthday once again

Part wipes but greed and strife and hate and pain—

Dear Lord, we pray In thankfulness of heart for they rich gifts

This New Year's Day!—Selected.

Alabama-Stanford Game on Tuesday

Final Workouts Held Before New Year Rose Bowl Contest

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—Two great football teams galloped through light workouts Monday and retired to await the kick-off at 2:15 p. m. (4:15 Hope time) Tuesday in the twentieth Rose Bowl clash of East and West.

Stanford worked a few minutes in the big arena where Columbia defeated them 7 to 0, last New Year's Day. Alabama ran through signals on the field at Eagle Rock. The 'Bama's already had held dress rehearsals in the bowl.

The representatives of the West and East seemed evenly matched. The difference in weight was reduced to ounces. Stanford averaging 194 and Alabama 193½. Stanford's backs are heavier but the Alabama line outscouts the Westerners.

dividual votes with witnesses from Nevada county, where 228 votes have been challenged.

Through Assessor M. L. Lavender it was brought out that there were no assessment lists for 117 of those challenged, that no assessment lists were unigned and that five bore assessments for husband and wife, while 80 names were stricken from the list of challenges and it was admitted they had assessed.

On cross-examination Lavender said there were some names on the personal property tax book that he did not put there, but that he didn't know who had added them after he had completed the book from his assessment lists.

Brad Bright, clerk of Nevada county, was the only one who heard Monday. Sheriff Pittman, who has been instructed to bring carbon copies of poll tax receipts, is expected to complete the testimony on Nevada county challenged votes. Then the contestee will call witnesses on about 80 challenged votes in Ashley county, and all the evidence will be in on the votes challenged by Parks. Kitchens will be given an opportunity for rebuttal, after which Judge Henry will rule on the validity of the challenged votes, which have been impounded, and they will be counted.

There already has been a ruling on the defense challenges in LaFayette county. Of 21 votes, 13 were found by the court to be valid, and of the remaining eight, four were cast for Parks and four for Kitchens.

Parks has challenged about 120 votes in Chicout county, 161 in Columbia and 400 in Hempstead.

New Year's Day will bring no recess in the hearing for Judge Henry is anxious to complete the case before January 21 when he will open criminal court here.

Members were in the committee room when the hearing opened today, but it was understood some of them had been summoned there as witnesses against O'Malley.

The Long administration, in securing the passage of a law at a recent special session of the legislature virtually abolishing municipal government at Alexandria, charges that the prosperous little city of 23,000 population is overrun with lawlessness.

Long is said to have threatened to oust O'Malley previously because of a personal grudge, which apparently had its inception in the "egg-throwing" at Alexandria several months ago when Long addressed a political rally. He blamed police for the occurrence.

ment is to join in limiting all armament and setting up an international police force to guard the highways of the world's commerce. Any nation may have equality when naval armament goes down to its desired minimum.

"Equality of naval armament when all nations are preparing for battle is for Japan an absolute impossibility."

It will not do, Dr. Butler declared, "to say that the problem of providing for Japan's rapidly-expanding population can not be solved save by armed force and by conquest of new territory."

"That is not true," the noted educator added. "These problems can all be solved—as the liberal and moderate school of thought in Japan would, I feel sure, be glad to solve them—in terms of peaceful and friendly consultation and negotiation."

ROOSEVELT, HOPKINS

and rehabilitation projects. They'd Spend Billions

Hopkins and Secretary Ickes, between them, have recommended billions for grade crossings, construction, expanded subsistence homesteads, rural electrification, flood control, slum clearance and cheap housing, road building, and things like that.

Ickes estimates, for instance, that $1,500,000,000 could be spent on grade crossing work and up to $2,000,000,000 for slum clearance and housing for the lowest income group.

Hopkins would like to see a large development of the plan by which the unemployed are put at work producing goods for one another—both the workers and their goods existing outside the competitive economic system.

He may also propose, as an economy move, establishment of government warehouses in every community. Both suggestions evoke howls from business interests.

Some long range public works program seems fairly certain. In that connection, remember that one of Roosevelt's pet dreams is bound up in the report of the National Resources Board, which has recommended a permanent national planning board to develop national resources—material and human—for benefit of the people; a permanent PWA program, with a long range six-year budget; a land planning program, to retire 5,000,000 acres of sub-marginal land a year; a program to use principal rivers for water power and navigation; and a $10,000,000,000 PWA program, to be used in depression time.

Seeks Treasury Relief

How much of this will get to Congress this year is uncertain, but some of it will—in connection with the administration's idea of putting the employable unemployed at work.

Roosevelt wants the debt burden taken off the treasury. That's impossible now, but it's hoped to achieve it by getting the employables at work in private industry and then transferring responsibility for the unemployed—of whom millions are on relief—to the states.

Meanwhile, the administration is about to bow in some degree to a great popular demand for old age pensions, as well as to ask Congress for an unemployment insurance act. Congressional mail contains more demands for old age pensions than for any other legislation.

A national health insurance program has also been studied by the president's Committee on Economic Security, but probably won't be presented at this session. The committee is also making strong recommendations for re-employment and rehabilitation programs.

Plan Tax On Payrolls

Present predictions are that unemployment insurance will be financed by a 3 per cent federal tax on payrolls

In Congress for federal contributions, with argument that a federal fund would help states subject to cyclical hazards.

There's no telling what form the old age insurance measure may take, because of great popular pressure for the radical Townsend plan with which the administration may have to make some compromise.

The administration proposal would almost certainly take the grant-in-aid form in the beginning. The federal government would contribute a third—or perhaps half—of the amount to be paid in pensions, and the states the balance. (Congressman Keller of Illinois asks that the government contribute 75 or 80 per cent of the amount at first.)

Millions Would Benefit

There are 6,500,000 Americans beyond the age of 65—the probable age limit to be fixed—and about half of them are dependent on relatives, charity, or relief. Old age pensions would take many off relief rolls, which is one chief aim.

Members of the president's committee have figured that beneficiaries should receive at least $30 a month, but initial federal aid pensions are likely not to exceed $15 or $20.

The grant-in-aid measure would apply to persons already beyond the age limit in states which already have old age pensions or which subsequently adopt them. Twenty-eight states now have old age pension laws, but few of the systems are functioning.

Grant-aid would be replaced gradually by a contributory system which would be set up in the same act. The contributory system would call for small payments by persons under 65 and by their employers into an old age pension fund which would begin to function after it accumulated sufficient assets.

Townsend Plan Slapped

Now as for the plan sponsored by Dr. Frank E. Townsend, who says he has 1500 Townsend clubs in 48 states with more than 15,000,000 members. (If those figures were proved correct I would take back the assertion that the Townsend bill can't win.)

Everybody over 60 would be paid a federal pension of $200 a month. He would have to spend it all and working. Townsend says this would promptly wipe out the unemployment army of 10,000,000 because 4,000,000 people would turn over their jobs to others and 6,000,000 would get jobs through the stimulus of all that spending.

There are about 10,000,000 persons over 60, depending on how many accepted the pension, the cost would run somewhere toward $2,000,000,000 a month.

The money would be raised by a sales tax which, Townsend says, should be from 4 to 10 per cent after an initial couple of billions from the treasury to get the plan started.

Federal social security experts say the plan would cost about half the national income, require at least a 10 per cent tax, inflate prices chaotically, and be impossible to operate and enforce.
